Processing Information:

This collection was minimally processed. The collection is arranged by Job Number, with the earliest jobs first.

Processed by: John L. Armstrong, Archivist, October 2014

Arrangement:

The collection is arranged into one series, by job number, and is in chronological order.

Biographical/Historical Note:

Very little is known about Lewis D. Klein. He was an architect in the Dayton area from 1957 to 1983. He developed architectural plans for a wide-variety of buildings, most of which were commercial buildings.

Scope and Content:

The Lewis D. Klein Architecture Collection consists of drawings for 230 different architecture design jobs Mr. Klein's architecture firm bid on. The collection includes both proposed or conceptual drawings up to full sets of plans. Of the 230 jobs, 27 are for residences and 49 are for apartment complexes. The rest are commercial buildings, including shopping plazas, churches, and various business facilities. The collection is arranged according to job number, which is based on the year the plans were developed. The first two digits of the job number indicate the year and the last two digits indicate the job for that year. Researchers should be aware that many of the plans consist of only one or two drawings. Also, the location of other plans developed by Mr. Klein are unknown.
